from the outset, the partnership created an environment of creative collaboration. The mutually beneficial success-based commercial model meant that both organisations were aligned to ensure that decisions were made quickly and effectively using shared data and insight. With a constant drive for shared success, the partnership has evolved and expanded.

Expanding the Partnership for Greater Returns

To assist Regent's in meeting its long-term strategic and recruitment objectives, it recently expanded its partnership with QS Enrolment Solutions to include market research services. Using tailored research, QS Enrolment Solutions has enabled Regent's to further expand its knowledge of students' decision-making criteria and processes, and understand their ambitions and life goals. It has also helped them to measure global awareness of the Regent's brand and understand its competitor positioning both within the UK and other countries. The resulting insights will enable optimisation of messaging and recruitment channels to generate high-quality leads.

"The Student Persona Project that we undertook with QS has been the best marketing investment we've made at the institution. It represents a real paradigm-shift in the way we'll be working in the future.

We now have the foundation of research that allows us to be really creative. We have a better understanding of our audience, our competitors, our channels, and our messaging. We know what's unique about our institution, and which aspects of this are most appealing. Perhaps most importantly, we know how to spend our marketing budget most effectively and the ROI we can expect." — Rich Yates, Head of Marketing and Deputy Director of External Relations at Regent's University London.
